Lines i remember highlighting first mission mission control(MC): hey ive caught a woman being beaten down by some cop meat. Wanna go help?

player character (PC) options:

- I'll be on my way
- That's what they're supposed to do. (fascist route)

If second option:

MC: Are you serious? she's getting really hurt out there

PC options:

- ok fine dude
- No this is the way this shit works lol (fascist route)

if second option:

MC: you have to save them it isn't an option

PC options:

- yes i will (quit from fascist route?)
- i will but just because your nagging, i dont care about really about her just you stop annoying me.

Notes:

I remember thinking that this dialogue chain would have the majority of players opt out of the fascist route and in general that the fascist route is not the one most people would choose. I will say it sounded fun. It may be similar gameplay to the hacking in cyberpunk 2077. Someone told me about the fascist route being "changes gameplay by allowing you to use more advanced technology" I forgot what it was but i think it was along the lines of surveillance state police military stuff that had low moral implications. Involved maybe like imagine cyberpunk cop dirty tactics. This dream maybe influenced by me hearing some about like modern political debates about palantir and flock and the growing tech among police on